LOVE AND KISSES.

Ing his Lottle.

An action for an alleged breach of promise of marriage, brought by Miss Charlotte Simons against Mr. Walter Stephen Jones, was tried in London on June 5 before Baron Pigott and a common jury.

The defendant, who had since married another lauy, denied that he had given such promise.

time.
Dearest Walty" requested her to walk in "in the nop gardens," and sent her in dearest girl" and "darling little his communications became warm-as his "own dearest girl" and "darling hitle pet," and so his communications became waringer as time advanced.

In 1871 his father died, and some time afterward he was timisting of purchasing a business at Rognor, but before he went there he wanted the plaintiff to marry him. She declined, thinking that it would be better to wait until he had established himself well in business, and at the end of about six months they could get married. On that particular occasion he gave her a ring, and said, "I hope soon to be able to change that, and give you a wedding ring."

The defendant having gone to Bognor, continued his correspondence from that place and from Brighton, his letters containing the usual expressions of love for his "dearest Charlotte." He wrote, "What he felt while absent in body from his beloved pet no tongue could tell." "His heart feit ready to burst because he was separated from his sweetest girl," and he begged of his darling to "accept thousands and thousands and hundreds of thousands and thousands and hundreds of thousands of kisses." Utilmately the defendant married a Miss Osborne, the daughter of the gentleman from whom he purchased the business at Bognor. The learned counsel characterized his conduct toward the plaintiff as being most heartless, and called upon the jury to give her exemplary damages.

Evidence having been given in support of this statement, the jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff—damages £250.

How a Kentucky Farmer Outwitted a Rural Shylock-Cashing Notes.
From the Lexingion (Ky.) Gazette.

Farmer Smith lived in a quiet way, and was supposed to have accumulated something ahead besides having a pretty farm. After his second son had been married about a year, he contributed to settle near the old man's if he could find a place.

Finally, however, after a great deal of talk, the price was agreed in at $20.00 cm of first with 12 per cent. Interest from date for the remainder. The contract was drawn, and they were about to sign, when the farmer suggested that if he should at any time get any more money than was due on the notes, he wanted that if he should at any time get any more money than was due on the notes, he wanted to the should at any time get any more money than was due on the notes, he wanted to the country to the per cent. The protocelion scened reasonable enough to Thompson, and he could not object to its insertion in the contract, and so the document was signed in duplicate. The deed was to be ready, and the first payment made on the following statistics, and the first payment made on the following statistics, and the first payment made on the following statistics, and the price payment made on the following statistics, and the price payment made on the following statistics and the protocolor of the first hote was paid.

"Never mind what they said, Mr. Smith," broke in Thompson; "just hand over the money you were going to say they sent you." And sure enough the old man produced still mother roll from some secret pocket, which sounted, proved to be the exact amount necessary to pay off the last note when the 4s per cent, and been duly taken off.

Thompson pocketed the money, went straight to the court house, acknowledged the deed, and sanded it over, with only this remark: "You are the d—dst old rascal I ever saw!"

Grasshoppers by the Million.

From the Ournama Mann, Journal.

Mr. I. Wood, of Medford, has travelled through a part of the country infested with grasshoppers, and says the want and destitution are not exaggerated. In some sections the growing crops are entirely destroyed, and as the number of these insects can only be counted by millions, while every day adds tens of thousands more, he thinks the prospect is decidedly dark for the people of those counties. In Windom the treets are so full that one cannot step without covering fifty, and the people are forced to close their houses to keep them out. Every species of growing crop is subject to their ravages. Not only farmers but business men are alike suffering from the result of their depredations, and a great many are taking advantage of the provision of Mr. Dunnell's bill allowing them to leave their homesteaus without forfeiting them, and are going to other parts of the State for are going to other parts of the State for

Are common jury.

The defendant, who had since married another lany, denied that he had given such promise.

Mr. Fersyth, Q. C., Mr. C. Clarke, and Mr. Political appeared for the defendant.

According to the opening statement of the learned counsel, the plaintiff, a woman of thirty-six years of age, was the daughter of a farmer at Broad Gates and Roxwell, and the owner of some mere land at Highwood, in the adjoining part he of Whittle, near Chebasford, in the county had been assented by the learned counsel. Childs Promoted to be a Colonel! From the Savannah Morning News. we were certain of receiving information and instruction. At such times, after we have perused and reperused the talented journal, it has been our custom to throw it into our composing room and watch the printers strive with each other to become the possessor. Following the example of Col. Childs, it has been our purpose to stir up a spirit of emulation, and in no way could we better do this than by allowing our compositors to fight over a copy of the Philadelphia Ledger.

These remarks are merely desultory. We simply intended to thank The Sen for the distinct rested manner in which it comes to the defence of Col. Childs.

A Black Samson.

A Black Samson.

From the Italimore American.

There is a negro Samson named Nelson de Lisle in New Orleans. He is a horse dealer by profession, and the trick of his trade is to take possession of horses in an unauthorized minner. He was denominated a horse thief before a court in New Orleans in 1899 and sent to the State prison, where he stayed only six days of the five years awarded him. He broke jail by snapping from bars as if they had been pine sticks, and carrying the outer gate, and fied and hid. The police have been on the lookout for him, and afraid they would find him. The other day two or three of them got hold of him, but he broke loose and laid them out on the pavement with one blow each of his mighty arm. De Lisle them ran, and the cry of "Stop thief" was raised, and a gathering crowd surged in pursuit. A policemant fired three shots without any apparent effect, and he was at length brought to a bait by running as it were in a crowd of a thousand men that had collected about him, both before and behind, in his light. The friction of such a mass was too much for him, and he saw the living wall close around him. He had no jawbone of an ass or any nodern weapon to wield, or he might have waded through that thousand men and been free. It took twelve muscular white Americans to take him to the station house, as he kept up a skirmishing fight all the way. He was put in the stocks, and it was found that a pistol bail had passed through his thigh, and a club had indented his forehead over the eye. His vitals, which were covered with a heavy coating of upper leather, were unharmed. The authorities are thinking of putting De Lisle to performing feats of strength for their amusement, as the Philistines did Samson of oid. He is not of exagerated size, being a little over medium size, but his mould is Herculean and bis endurance is equal to that of a steam engine of twenty horse power.

New Greenbacks for Old Money. W. Joulard, of 506 Broadway, has embarked in the fool fishery. He is (to quote from his circular to gulis) the best engraver in America, and was for a long time superlutendent of the Engraving Department of the Government. The last two years he has devoted to perfecting splendid plates of fifty-cent notes, and one two, five and ten-dollar greenbacks. Even the Treasur two, nye and ten-doins greenbacks. Even the freasury officials cannot distinguish his issue from the genuine; the banks accept it without question, and so do tradesmen; but then he labors under the disadvantage that ail bis money is new. As he needs old money to mix with it, he sends out circulars offering new money for old at a discount of he per cent. Having been badly used by the Post office Department when he carried on the sawdust business in Ann street (aithough he does not mention this fact in his circular), Mr. Joulard declines to trust the mail. All orders and money must be sent by express.
